APRIL 6th 1809

Hattie Johnson's second application for a writ of habeas corpus was denied in Judge Lewis's division of the third district on Saturday morning, and the young woman was remanded to the custody of Chief of Police Barlow to complete her second sentence of 100 days for vagrancy.

The woman, who was sentenced to five days, but made application for a writ of habeas corpus on the grounds that the commitment was not made in her presence and was therefore illegal. This application was granted, but the woman was rearrested at once and Police Judge Bowman resented her this time giving her 100 days. The second application for a writ of habeas corpus, filed by the woman, was denied by Chief Barlow who refused to release the woman without legal authority.
